"ENFANCE ET ADOLESCENCE" IN FRENCH AND FRANCOPHONE LITERATURE

PAROLES GELÉES: UCLA French Studies

Over the past 17 years, Paroles Gelées has provided graduate students and faculty from around the world a forum in which to publish their scholarly articles. Past issues have included a wide range of articles on French and Francophone literatures and cultures from the Middle Ages to Post-Colonial Studies, as well as interviews with scholars such as René Girard, Jean Baudrillard and Michel Delon. The 1999 edition of Paroles Gelées seeks a variety of papers exploring and analyzing images of children and representations of childhood and adolescence in all periods of French and Francophone literature and culture.

Possible themes might include but are not limited to:

- Coming of Age
- Representation of Family
- Cultural Identity
- Children and Medicine
- Bourgeois/Nobility/Peasant Children
- Paris/Province
- Romanticism and Children
- Children and Origins
- Childhood Memories
- War and colonization

Papers must be received by MAY 15, 1999, to be considered for the 1999 issue.

Papers submitted for consideration should be limited to approximately 25 typewritten pages and may be written either in french or english. Authors should follow the MLA style handbook in preparing their articles and provide three (3) copies of their work with name and affiliation indicated on the cover sheet only. Those authors whose articles are selected for publication will later be asked for a copy on a 3.5" diskette using Microsoft Word 97.

Anthropoetics

The Journal of Generative Anthropology

www.humnet.ucla.edu/humnet/anthropoetics/home.html

In contrast to fashionable methodologies that dissolve the human in the fractal complexity of cultural differences, generative anthropology (GA) is founded on the "originary hypothesis" that all cultural phenomena derive from the hypothetical scene in which humans first became human by using language. The originary purpose of human language is to defer mimetic violence by permitting each to possess the sign of the unpossessable desire-object—the deferral of violence through representation.

GA seeks to transcend the impasse between the humanities imprisoned in the "always already" of cultural systems and the empirical social sciences that cannot model the paradoxical generativity of these systems.

Anthropoetics is open to any work of quality in the humanities or human sciences that involves fundamental reflection on the human. Past issues include special numbers on René Girard (Spring/Summer 1997); Religion (Spring/Summer 1997); Wolfgang Iser (Fall/Winter 1997–98); and Deconstruction (Spring/Summer 1998).

Women

IN FRENCH STUDIES

Women in French Studies, the annual journal of Women in French, an allied organization of the Modern Languages Association, publishes articles in both English and French on any aspect of women in French-speaking literatures or cultures. WIF members, men and women who work in these areas, may submit articles for consideration to Adele King, Department of Modern Languages and Classics, Ball State University, Muncie, IN 47306. Women in French Studies also sponsors an annual prize for the best essay submitted by a graduate student. Essays should be sent to Catherine Stephanson, Department of Foreign Languages, University of North Carolina, Charlotte, NC 28223-0001.

The annual subscription is $12 for the US and Canada and $24 for overseas (payable in US dollars, postage included). Checks or money orders, made out to Women in French should be sent to Adrianna Paliyenko, Department of French, Colby College, Waterville, ME 04901-8846.

For membership forms, contact Yolande Helm, 21 Sunset Lane, The Plains, OH 45780. Membership is $25 ($37 Canadian) for full and associate professors (three-year membership, $70 US), $15 ($24 Canadian) for others (three-year membership, $40 US). Membership includes two newsletters and a copy of Women in French Studies.

Women in French Studies is indexed in the MLA Bibliography, and is a member of the Council of Editors of Learned Journals.
